Great Things come in Small Packages

You are probably looking at the cover of the yearbook asking yourself, ''What does this theme mean?'' Of course, by now you have already acknowledged how clever the staff was to advertise the yearbooks with the poster, ''Give Yourself a Gift — buy a yearbook.'' But enough with our hints. The theme we have chosen to develop represents our perception of Weston High School. Despite its very small size, which incidentally seems to be decreasing every year, our school consistently produces outstanding individuals. In every area — academics, sports, dramatics, music, and literary works — students excel far beyond the norm. Contained in this small building, as well as between the covers of this book, are the people that give this school its greatness. □

The Biggest Package

After four years of bake sales, dances, good times and rough times, the class of 1988, guided by class advisors, Mrs. Sullivan and Mr. Boucher, has proven itself one of the most dynamic group of kids ever to come through Weston High. We're a diverse bunch of athletes, actors and scholars who, by leading sports teams, extra-curricular activities and student government, have demonstrated our tremendous talent and enthusiasm. But although our class members have many different interests, we have also contributed our energies in class-related activities and fundraisers.

Ever since freshman year, we were prepared to build a sizable treasury through fruit sales, car washes and ski trips. At each event, especially our prom, the class members' willingness to work together created a special class unity. In the last few years, we've demonstrated our originality and initiative by holding auctions, selling refreshments at soccer and field hockey games, and managing the Coke machine.

Through our four years together, our experiences in and out of school have led to special friendships and life long memories. Although we're saddened at the thought of leaving our friends, teachers and families after graduation, we are also ready to test our talent and enthusiasm on the rest of the world! □

The First Day

After two months of relaxation, sunny weather and no homework, students face the first day of school in early September. Freshmen arrive early, flocking in groups to nervously speculate about meeting new teachers and upperclassmen. At the morning bell, freshmen immediately rush to their homerooms for fear of getting lost and spend the next hour anxiously filling out schedules, receiving locker combinations and finding out which friends are in their classes. Sophomores, on the other hand, take their time traveling to their homerooms to contemplate on a year with free periods; while the Seniors casually stroll in at 7:49 chatting with others about their summer adventures.

After homeroom period and a school-wide meeting, Freshmen spend the rest of the morning treking around the high school in search of unknown classrooms and strange teachers; and bumping into easy-going seniors, who saunter through the hallways contemplating their upcoming graduation. The students' journeys are halted by a Student Council barbeque, which allows freshmen to gossip about their morning experiences and seniors to talk to kids they haven't seen for two months. After lunch, freshmen again hurry to their new classes until the end of the day, when they take the bus home to start their homework; while seniors take their time traveling to their last classes, after which they drive home to an afternoon of cartoons and soap operas. □

Hollywood Awards Night

The 1987 prom, "Hollywood Awards Night," revealed the tremendous spirit of the class of 1988. It was an event in which class members put aside their differences and contributed their time and energy to a common cause. Preparing for the prom months before the "big day," we all worked together to transform Weston Town Hall into a Hollywood Awards theatre.

After dining at exquisite restaurants, we were first struck by the "Hollywood effect" as we passed the bright letters of the "Hollywood" sign which lit up the town green. Attired in fancy tuxedos and elegant dresses, we strutted out of stretch limousines to the flashbulbs of photographers and a red carpet at the door. Inside, the authenticity of the decorations made us feel like true celebrities: An ice sculpture and posters of past movie greats glittered in the hallway, while each class member's name, written on a silver star, lined the staircases. As the night progressed, we gave awards to "The Stars of the Class of 1988," and danced in a Hollywood banquet hall decorated with silver streamers and confetti.

The hard work and preparation for the 1987 prom, along with the dancing, cheering, excitement, and a night of wild parties, made "Hollywood Awards Night" an event to remember. We'll always look back on the prom as a night when we were treated like Hollywood Stars. □

Vending Wars

Have you ever wandered through the halls during a conference period when suddenly, out of nowhere, your stomach cries out to be fed? You reach into your pocket, and, thank God, you've got some spare change! Now, you know you're hungry, but are you thirsty, too? O.K. maybe you're hungry and thirsty. Yes, that's it. But what to do? You continue to wander, with visions of "Goldfish" crackers and Diet Coke in your head or was that "Bagels" and "Ocean Spray Generic Fruit Drink?" No matter! As you begin to walk faster, your heart pounding with excitement, you begin to salivate with anticipation and at last, some primitive instinct directs you into the last bastion of dog-eat-dog capitalism: The Cafeteria.

Within its walls, you'll find a veritable potpourri of snacks and soft drinks designed to appease your demanding appetite. The Cafeteria Staff's monopoly of "Ocean Spray" juice machines and a vending snack machine dispenses all sorts of goodies, including popcorn, fudge brownies, chocolate chip cookies and cigarettes — well not yet, but give it a year or two.

In another corner sits the Senior-run Coke machine or, the "devil on earth" in the eyes of some Weston parents who'd like to have every student brushing and flossing after lunch. Nevertheless, the machine is a source of wonderful, carbonated, sugar-water for the entire student body.

And this onslaught of capitalism doesn't stop here. Junior class mothers are hawking bagels outside the Main Office during conference periods, while the yearbook staff members sit faithfully in the cafeteria promoting M&M's and tooth decay.

Yes, indeed, capitalism seems to be running rampant within the High School halls. But beneath a guise of friendly competition are fierce rivalries where only one thing matters: money. The Juice machines are out to capture the beverage market from the Coke Machine while the yearbook M&M sales compete with bagel sellers and the vending snack machine. To competitors, a bagel is no longer an afternoon snack, it is the enemy, a thing to be hated and despised.

So once you get into the cafeteria, your primary concern is not "Will I pass Math this term?" but is rather "to whom will I give my money?" Think about this: It's not just a matter of feeding your stomach, it's life or death in the vending machine wars. Oh, by the way, can you spare a quarter? □

No More Home Games

Due to the construction on the new track and football field, the 1987 football team was forced to move its home games to Wayland for the season. This rearrangement was hard on the team because many of the senior players lost the chance to play on their own field during their last year at Weston. It was also difficult for the team to play without the support of their own fans. Fortunately, many Wildcat supporters followed their team to Wayland in order to cheer them on. The Senior concession stand also moved and helped boost the Weston spirit.

Because the football team sacrificed their home games, the new track, which promises to be one of the fastest in the state, will be ready for use in the spring. Next fall, life will have returned to normal with a home field for the football team, and a track for the runners. In the meantime, the field has been out of use except for when it doubled as an emergency airstrip. One of the year's most memorable occurrences, the crash landing and near miss of the new track was an event which will be long remembered. □

Spirit Day

Through the perseverance of the Weston community and careful planning, Spirit Day united the town in celebrating ''Weston.'' On this sunny fall day, Weston residents of all ages took part in a variety of activities, including a ''Moon Walk,'' pie baking contests and field events. It seemed that there was something for everyone, from a road race for kids, to an exciting parachute jump which captured everyone's attention.

As in past townwide events, the High School played an integral role in making Spirit Day a success. Some high school kids carved pumpkins, ran in the road race and dressed up as clowns, while individual classes, aided by Student Council volunteers, provided refreshments for the day. In addition, High School students enjoyed participating in the events and visiting the numerous booths and exhibits.

Weston can look back on Spirit Day as a united effort by Town Residents and the High School to provide a day of fun and excitement for all of Weston. Weston students helped to make Spirit Day an incredible success! □

School Outside Of School

"From suburbia, the work of the world is largely invisible." That is the postulate which inspired the development of Weston High School's ONE-TO-ONE program, which provides as option for students at all four grade levels to select adult mentors and spend a day observing them as they go about their vocations. Choices are made from among more than 150 mentors, ranging from a brain surgeon to a farmer of a cranberry bog.

"The suburbs are faulted for isolating adolescents from the sweaty business of making a living. A few of our students are not sure what it is, exactly, that their parents do." comments Principle Bruce MacDonald, who dreamed up the program. "Nor do they understand the wide variety of employments required to make a technological society function."

Making ONE-TO-ONE a reality was the work of Roberta Siegel, who spent many hours in correspondence and phone calls with mentor volunteers, many of whom have chosen to participate to create interest and variety of their jobs as well as for their own interest in teenagers and in education.

Not every mentor has been shadowed, but some have been observed several times. One physician took a student a week for six consecutive weeks. As the program catches on the range of contacts will naturally widen.

In addition to students who choose to participate on their own, the most extensive use of ONE-TO-ONE has been in the sciences. Susan Majors requires all members of her Honor's Biology classes to spend a day with someone in applied science. One student spent twelve hours with a pediatric surgeon; another helped collect and analyze water samples with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' Marine Biologists.

Bruce MacDonald's goal for the program is to cultivate students' humanity as well as their intellects, "We encourage students to discover people and ideas that are completely new to them, rather than to follow familiar paths," commented Mrs. Siegel who coordinates the program and who can be found every morning in the Main Office Conference Room for discussion with students and teachers, and for matchmaking with mentors. As with any educational program, the ultimate test is what it does for kids. This is a typical comment from the required report: (from a student who spent a day with a psychiatrist at a major urban hospital). "I was very impressed with him that he could live in such a nice neighborhood and then go to work in such a poor part of town. That he cared so much to help the poor and to let them have dedicated doctor. I think it takes a very impressive man to do that. It's one thing to say that you want to help the poor but it's another thing to actually do something about it and to spend your entire life dedicated to them. I had an interesting experience that I'll never forget." □

Dedication

Barry McNeil is the man who keeps Weston High School going. His willingness to come to school at 4:00 in the morning to turn on the heating system; his optimism when coping with any spill, broken window, or cluttered cafeteria table; and his ability to relate to all individuals, adults and teenagers alike, indicate the indispensability of Barry to Weston High School.

There is something truly special about Barry McNeil. He counsels fellow employees when they need a helping hand. He has earned respect from students by dealing with each of them and by showing a genuine interest in the lives of all who know him. When a student has problem in school or at home, Barry McNeil is always there, willing to spend his time and energy to help ease the pressures of high school.

Indeed, there is something very special about Mr. Barry McNeil and the class of 1988 respectfully dedicates this yearbook to him. □

A Tradition of Rivalry

There are five seconds left on the game clock, Weston is trailing its dreaded rival, Wayland, by two points. Here comes Rob Shore onto the field to attempt a twenty-one yard field goal. The snap is down, the kick is up and the kick is . . . GOOD!

Is there any better feeling then beating Wayland? From Basketball to Baseball and all the way down the line, victory over Wayland is a phenomenon words hardly can describe. Beating Wayland is like the Celtics beating Lakers or the Red Sox beating the Mets. Revenge is a definite factor.

For over fifty years, we have been challenging Wayland in interscholastic sports. Every Weston/Wayland game has drawn tremendous support, a tradition that is sure to linger on into the twenty-first century! Triumph over Wayland on Thanksgiving Day makes the turkey taste so much better. But before we sit down to dinner, we will certainly have gone to the Pancake Breakfast preceding the game. Some of us have been going to this event we all enjoy, though we may regret it after eating the pancakes. Nonetheless, it is a part of Weston's traditions, like the big showdown itself, to which we know we will return again the next year. □

In an orderly fashion, Leeli Brooks, Marian Davidson, Melissa Fish, Alison Kamp, and Christy Britton complete their homework in the caf.

Life in the Caf

It is a known fact that the cafeteria is much more than a place to eat lunch. During frees, one can sit back, relax and participate in thought-provoking discussions, such as, the compatibility of the newest couple or an analysis of Saturday night's party. Between classes, students can make futile attempts at finishing assignments or do last minute studying for an upcoming test. After the test, the caf is also a popular place for mourning one's performance over a drink from either the Coke or Juice machine.

Lunchtime squeezes all these activities into less than forty-eight minutes. The quiet expanse of open space becomes crowded with shouting students, the majority being underclassmen. The upperclassmen, adept at finding their way to Route 9, leave to keep up their continued support of Papa Gino's or McDonald's. Despite their absence, the student left behind is faced with a desperate search for a chair. Once table and chair have been secured amid the chaos, the student can finally begin eating, unless he is forced to practice the fine art of money mooching, a tremendously popular pastime in the cafeteria.

For the multitalented type, who is capable of taking advantage of what it has to offer him, the caf serves as a meeting place, gossip center, study hall and sleeping area. Though it's moment of glory falls during the lunch period, our cafeteria can peacefully support life throughout the whole day. □

P.E. — Weston's Answer to the Iron Man

Perhaps one of the most memorable experiences of high school is Physical Education. All Weston High students have to endure four long years of playing football, tennis, pickleball, and just about every sport imaginable.

Early in the school year, we're able to endure P.E.; the weather is usually sunny and warm. But as the late months approach, Gym becomes a precarious experience. Most of us have had the experience of putting on what seems like five sweatshirts in order to prevent freezing on icy cold days. Some students, having left their sweatpants at home, have been forced to wear shorts in the bitter cold. With stuffy noses, shivering knees, and frostbitten hands, these students wander onto the frigid field to play touch football. One of these students jams his fingers trying to catch a pass. He yells and shakes his hand in pain, but to no avail. The gym teacher, meanwhile, who is wearing a down ski jacket and gloves, yells "Come on, you should have caught that pass!" On the next play, the student falls down and bruises his knee on the frozen, granite-like ground. He gets up limping and wonders if gym class was created to kill him.

When temperatures and windchills start to fall below zero degrees, the gym teachers finally allow gym classes to be held indoors. The student who had sprained his finger and had injured his knee celebrates at first, but then he realizes that he must endure swimming. After ten laborious laps of the breast stroke, the student suffers through a cold shower in an attempt to cleanse the chlorine from his hair. Next is a torturing walk back to the high school. As his hair freezes into a shapeless icicle, he is reminded of the icy cold gym classes which were held outdoors.

After we graduate, we can be sure that our risk of catching pneumonia, colds, and frostbite will decrease considerably! □

The Race To Homeroom

The school day does not begin with a moment of silence or the reading of the morning announcements. Instead, it commences with a frantic race against the clock to beat out the morning bell. For both spectators and contestants the excitement of this high speed dash never fails to alleviate the numbness of early morning slumber.

Regularly, we watch a contender sprint down the hall, swing into homeroom, and slide into the nearest chair only to hear the teacher's verdict of "LATE." "You weren't in your seat at the bell." The validity of this judgement is highly disputed due to the general confusion as to when Homeroom officially starts. Some parties maintain that the start is at 7:50 on the dot, and others contend that the bell is the only true indicator. While yet another group argues that the period definitely starts with the beginning of morning announcements. The one thing that can be counted on is the contestant's certain defeat, however close to victory he may seem.

What do these determined competitors receive in return for their all-out efforts? Nothing at all, except of course, those pink slips and return trips back down to the attendance office to sign in. Fortunately, instead of giving up, our surefooted individuals keep trying, hoping that one day they will triumph over the forces that mark them tardy day after day. □

Jen Raynovich

Late to homeroom for the fifth time in a row, Jenny Sommer's homeroom teacher refuses to open the door for her.

THE FREE — A True Necessity of Life

FREES, without them life would be miserable. Our days would drag on endlessly, the monotony sending most students into a deep state of unconsciousness. Fortunately, we have "frees" to give us a break from the routine, whole blocks of time with which we can do whatever we please. Students, being the creative creatures they are, have no problem finding non-academic means to pass the time.

Making the most of their free time, some students wander aimlessly through the school, stopping only to make faces at friends in class, utter loud disruptive noises in the halls, while others sleep in the cafeteria. If a student has a destination, it usually is the cafeteria; or if he is a more studious sort, the library. Once there, he can join up with a group of friends to gossip and discuss how he really should be doing his homework. This is a guaranteed way to waste at least half an hour.

If our student reaches the end of his journey without finding any of his friends, he shouldn't worry because he still doesn't have to work. All he must do is appear to be studying while actually he spaces out, meditates and ponders ideas that in no way could ever help him with his schoolwork. If none of these choices seem appealing, a creative student always has the option of stumbling into the nurse's office to try out new ways of getting out of gym.

Whatever way a student chooses to spend a free you can be sure that it is in no way scholastically constructive. Though he should, and probably would like to get his work done, he will inevitably submit to the forces which cause him to sit back, relax, and enjoy himself. □

Momi and Daddy: Thanks, I love you so, so much!!!!!

Exhaused after twenty all nighters, John Sullivan has completely forgotten to shave.

The All-Nighter

Imagine, if you will, the following scenario: tomorrow you have three tests and a problem-set due. Of course, you have known about this for a week. But nonetheless, you have again succeeded in blowing everything off until the night before. Looks like the dreaded ALL-NIGHTER.

When beginning the all-night vigil, there are two things to keep out of your mind; procastination and sleep. Avoiding procrastination can be tough, so stay away from the radio or T.V. The Red Sox or Celtics playing a West Coast game can eat up a few good hours. Try to avoid the phone too, this really kills time.

Sleep is your Nemesis. If you usually study in bed, forget it. You will wake up in the morning, not having done anything. By no means should you take "a short nap" — remember Rip Van Winkle. So clear off the desk and find some stimulants.

Sugary things do not work. To stay awake for long periods of time, caffeine is required. Coke? Not really effective. Tea? Getting better. Coffee? Not bad. Jolt? Now you're talking! No-Doz? Only if you want to stay awake awhile! Now you can study . . . 'till dawn. Just remember to shower and change before school.

One more tip don't wait until homeroom to make that Physics notecard. It takes longer than you think.

Good Luck! □

Mushroom Madness

The mushroom, located at the center of the library, has a mysterious, magnetic quality. Those who can call the pink and orange carpeted library "home" know very well how tables and chairs unaccountably disappear, only to reappear later on the mushroom. Common library objects — such as books, magazines, pamphlets and yearbooks — have a way of being drawn from their appropriate places to their second home upstairs. Even the amount of food found up there at any given time is enough to put the cafeteria out of business. Among the scattering of different objects atop the mushroom, including an abundance of rowdy students, one can find signs proclaiming it to be a silent area, a place for quiet study only.

Even a brief visitor to our library would question, "Is the mushroom for quiet study only?" The loud shrieks and flying objects coming down from pranksters, who are never quite caught, do seem to disprove this theory. If the visitor remained, he would undoubtedly see, or at last hear, a frustrated librarian trying to convince a student that first, the mushroom is an area for quiet study, and secondly, if he does not quietly down immediately, he can remove himself from the library permanently. Though the reprimanded student may have good intentions and actually try to work, the mushroom will soon work it's magic causing him to abandon his studies and join the fun once again. □

Les voyages forment la jeuness. Cette phrase paraît peut-être banale a première vue, tout le monde l'a déjà entendu . . . Dans toutes langues elle a son équivalent, rependant, elle prend seulement maintenant pour moi une dimension. En effet, ce séjour m'apprend beaucoup souvent des "leçons" auxquelles je ne m'attendais pas. En fait il n'y a pas grand chose à dire Il faut le vivre! C'est pas evident, mais c'est super! I want to thank everyone even if it's just for saying "Hye" mais mon + grand MERCI va en ligne directe à vous papa, maman Diolier ainsi que toute ma famille et mes amis . . . Pas grand chose . . . peu de mots . . . mais beaucoup . . . ONE YEAR!

"Boy, I really wish we could go into the language lab," exclaims Amy Shapiro to Brett Scoll.

Language Lab

Sitting in a language class can be a real drag. The teacher watches your every move and the clock seems to go backwards instead of forward. The only comfort is that once a week trip to the Language Lab.

When you enter this room you breathe a sign of relief as you slip into a booth in the last row. No teacher can watch you here. As the tape beings to play you check to see if any new gossip has been added to the already crowded desk. You notice that someone forget to carve in the initials of the newest couple. You take charge of this activity with your new pen.

Suddenly you realize that have have fallen behind in the lab. No problem! Your best friend is sitting right next to you so you can just share your answers. As you complete the listening section the teacher announces a pop oral exam. She will listen to you as you practice your accent. Easy! You only have to speak when she prompts you. As the minutes wind down you take out the math homework that is due next period. What better time and place to do it than here and now.

As the bell rings the teacher calls out to leave your homework on the front desk. Language Lab is perfect for this too. Seeing that you didn't complete your assignment you quickly slip out the back door. As you leave you wish that you could have it so easy every day. □

Double Lab: A Test of Strength

Anybody taking a science knows and fears the words: DOUBLE LAB. From September until June science students sacrifice two periods a week to conduct perplexing experiments meant to unravel the mystery of scientific theory.

During these Labs, students can be caught in the act of dissecting hearts, eyes, or entire animals, in various stages of development. Others can be seen mixing unknown substances to create a wide range of unsuspected reactions. Fortunately our school has yet to be blown up and eyeballs, though sometimes they do wander, rarely stray very far from the biology corridor.

A much debated question among students is "At what part of the day is it most painful to endure a double lab?" Three highly contended answers are: early in the morning when a student attempts to function despite the fact he is still sleeping; before second lunch when it is an endless stretch of acute hunger; or the last two periods when his brain cells have decided to take a leave of absence until afternoon announcements. Though all three are justifiable responses, our research has been unable to determine which one is the most deserving of the title, "Most Agonizing."

Despite it's hardships, double lab can be an enjoyable opportunity to practice the ability to cajole a science teacher into giving extended snack breaks and to experience the excitement of covertly smuggling in food. The end of the period is also an excellent time to brush up on undetected escape methods, as well as practicing diplomatic skills to secure an early class dismissal. When the young scientist finally leaves, no matter what the Double Lab Experience means to him, he is sure to breathe a deep sigh of relief and tell himself, "Another week's double lab is over. I've survived once again!" □

Fed up with the excessive amount of heat in her history classroom, Sarah Bowditch decides to cool off and listen to her tunes in the hall.

A Heated Topic

As you stroll to your first period class, you can usually find a few kids next to their lockers putting on gloves, jackets, and scarves. Curiously, you ask why they're dressing so heavily, and they respond, "I'm going to history class."

There seems to be something evil about the Weston High School heating system. As you venture into Room 27, you immediately notice students shivering in response to the cold, which has produced frost covered windows. Sitting down in an icy seat, you try to concentrate and listen to the teacher in spite of the fact that your knees are shaking, but to no avail! Finally, when you can't take it anymore, you rush over to the heater in search of some warmth, but the steel contraption defiantly sprays out cold air in your face. You dejectedly trudge back to your seat and try to ignore the numbness in your fingers and chattering of your teeth.

As spring arrives, you realize that the heating problems are not over. Walking to class in April and May, you notice that the same kids who were putting on jackets and gloves in winter are now wearing shorts and T-shirts to prepare for history class. On a balmy spring day, when the temperature is in the seventies, the temperature in Room 27 seems to be in the eighties! In the middle of class, after starting to feel perspiration in your palms, you travel to the heater to discover that it's blowing out warm air! Struggling back to your heat, you wonder why Weston High School has a heating system at all. □

PAT YOUNG — November 14

Greatful To You . . .

We came to the high school as a pack of blind freshmen with little or no concept of high school life. Our reputation had arrived months before our actual admission and we found ourselves struggling to convince the faculty that we were not the worst class ever to roam the halls of Weston High School. There were two teachers who required no such convincing, Mr. Boucher and Mrs. Kenyon, and they volunteered to be our class advisors.

Although we were saddened by the departure of Mrs. Kenyon during our freshman year, we found little time for sorrow as Mrs. Sullivan ably took up the reins. Mr. Boucher and Mrs. Sullivan, in venturing into this formidable task, soon made it obvious that , with their dynamic leadership, our class would achieve its potential. There is no doubt that Mr. Boucher and Mrs. Sullivan provided the comfort and expertise we needed to complete our high school career.

The subtle wisdom of Mr. Boucher's advice and his determination to make money, facilitated the process of fund-raising immensely. We shall not forget him as he filled the Coke machine day-after-day; and as he lugged the bags of coins to be deposited in our treasury. When asked about his memories of the senior class, Mr. Boucher stated that he'd never forget getting up at five o'clock for the pancake breakfast; or ''getting washed'' at the car wash. He added that, ''As class advisor, I have witnessed the triumphs and tragedies of the class of '88. I have seen them grow and mature; and have learned from them. Above all, it's been a pleasure.

The love and care that Mrs. Sullivan's busy office offered to ''stressed'' students was the main reason that school remained bearable for many of us. Everyone knows the comfort of a conversation with Cecile when school has them down. Mrs. Sullivan had the following to say about the senior class, ''As advisor to the Class of '88, I have many warm memories. The first class meeting in Room 10 was absolute chaos. As an optimist, I decided to view this as a class filled to the brim with energy and was challenged to put the energy to use. Our ''Hollywood Awards Night'' prom was a great example of the cooperation and creativity which developed over the years. I have learned to love the Class of '88 with its many diverse and wonderful individuals. I will truly miss them and their superb class leaders. I wish them many blessings and hope to see them often.''

The Class of '88 wishes to express its gratitude for the generosity, warmth, and caring of our class advisors. Thank you for everything. We'll miss you, Mr. Boucher and Mrs. Sullivan. □

JUNIORS

We're almost there! One more year and we'll be full-fledged SENIORS! We've got a lot to do before we get there! We've been working very hard to raise money for our prom, "Mardi Gras Ball." We had a successful car wash that brought in over $700. During conference periods and after school, our class mothers have been selling bagels. With the help of our advisors, Mrs. Brown and Ms. DaCosta, we have been selling candy and stuffed animals. We've begun to feel the pressure of the college application process. SAT's are just around the corner and we are all busy polishing up our vocabulary and math skills. Now that we've acquired our licenses we're eagerly awaiting our Senior Privileges.

The Class of 1989 is confident that this year will be very productive. As someone once said, "There's nothing left to do . . . but smile, smile, smile. □

SOPHOMORES

With a positive outlook and a unique enthusiasm, the class of 1990 is looking towards a bright future. After pulling ourselves out of financial difficulties as freshmen, we've learned to combine business with pleasure to start putting some money into our treasury. We got things rolling with a successful Sophomore-Freshmen Mixer, despite the rain . . . and the rain! Since then, we've held a fall car wash, participated in Spirit Day festivities and sponsored a holiday fruit sale.

Like previous classes, we're still learning to adjust to High School life, free periods and new cafeteria seats. But it's kind of different being a Sophomore in Weston High because we're just not "there" yet.

FRESHMAN

From looking down on the sixth graders of the Middle School to straining our necks to catch a glimpse of the eyes of the seniors . . . From desolate and clean halls monitored by 'Doc', to the can-cluttered halls of Mr.McDonald's domain . . . Enter the FROSH, the class of 1991.

As with all other degraded and intimidated freshmen, it seemed scary: a new school, new teachers and upper-classmen. At first, we were thrown around in the rush between classes, placed at the end of each line and labeled the most inferior class of the student body. But as days wore on, we eased into the new lifestyle and saw that our newly acquired home wasn't all that bad. By making friends with previously notorious upper-classsmen, joining school activities and participating on sports teams, we overcome the culture shock of the first days and eased into high school life. We even started a class treasury to begin saving for our Junior Prom and look forward to that day in 1991 when we finally graduated from Weston High.

So remember, the Frosh have arrived, ready to make our mark as one of the best classes to ever come through the High School. The class of 1987 claimed that they were "the last class to graduate with class." Well the class of '91 is here to prove them wrong! □

Science — Beakers and Bats

I walked through the door of my science classroom, found my seat and sat down. Realizing I had forgotten my calculator, note book and textbook, I made a mad dash to my locker — hoping I could make it back before the dreaded "bell." Breathless, but successful in my attempt, I reseated my "fully-armed self" and waited to see what was scheduled for the day.

The teacher, rubbing his hands, explained, "I want to give you a few notes first, and then you can finish your labs." I smiled, pleased that I had remembered my books, then dug out my notebook. Christine, to my left, scribbled involved mathematical formulas to try to prove that her personal theories were better than Newton's. Bill, on my right, stared at the board with a stunned expression on his face. Every now and then he would emit a mystified, "What?" I copied down the list of terms on the board, stopping to explain them to Bill as Christine theorized with our teacher.

My lab group assembled and I began to wonder if we would be able to finish our activity during double-lab period, because Bill had fallen asleep and his buddies had started a ball game with our lab equipment. They glanced over at me, "Just give us your data, OK?" It appeared that I was alone in this endeavor. I frowned and picked up the instructions. I hoped I would be able to figure out what they meant. After I had wrestled the ball and stick from Bill's ball playing-friends, I tried to set up the experiment. Five attempts later, we were ready to begin.

Finally, I had taken the first set of data. All of a sudden, now that the work was done, the rest of the group was eager to join in. The problem was that there were four different opinions about what our data meant. Our group started yelling so loudly that Bill was awakened from his slumber. "What?"

"Nothing, Bill, you can go back to sleep." I suggested that we should ask the teacher which of our opinions was correct. The yelling stopped but nobody made a move to get up. Luckily, the teacher was headed our way. I picked up my sheet ready to defend my hard-won data. □

Mathematics — Highly Abstract Limits

I stepped confidently into my math class, strutting to my seat and opening my textbook to last night's homework. After a few minutes of discussing last period's science discussion with a few friends, I sat attentively as Mrs. Gonzalez started her lecture.

"Today, we're going to learn the definition of limit," she proclaimed with a smile. "Now, don't be disappointed if this doesn't 'sink in' right away; the definition of limit is somewhat hard to grasp."

With a gulp, I started copying notes furiously onto the sheet of paper in front of me. After two chalkboards of definitions and subsequent corollaries and theorems, I sat with a dazed look on my face, staring at a maze of Greek letters and puzzling graphs.

"Ah, Mrs. Gonzalez, can you go over that one part again?" I inquired timidly.

"Starting from where?"

"After you said, 'Today, we're going to learn the definition of limit.'"

After many explanations and examples, I began to understand this piece of highly abstract mathematics, but I breathed a deep sigh of relief when the bell rang. Gathering my books and pencils, I started to stumble out of the room, but was halted by Mrs. Gonzalez.

"Wait a minute, class. I have to give you tonight's homework assignment. Let'see, page 206, 1,3,5,7 and 9 and 23-64." I shook my head and tramped out of Room 9 into the confusion of the Sophomore hallway. □

English — "Symbolic Cows"

I took a book from the pile and added my name to the sign-up sheet. This latest addition to my collection of English books was called "Obscure Tribal Poetry of the Modern Century." I was not impressed. I leafed through the pages and my mood brightened as I noticed that several of the poems appeared to be short. At last, the sign-up sheet completed its voyage around the room and class was ready to start.

The teacher asked if anyone would like to begin reading the poem on page forty-three, out-loud to the class. A brave individual in the front row volunteered and the silence was at last broken. As the voice started to read, I glanced across the room at my friend, Bob. He crossed his eyes and stuck out his tongue, determined to make me laugh. Just as determined not to laugh, I remained in control of myself until the teacher ended the duel by yelling, "Bob, if you don't think you can handle being here, please feel free to leave anytime." I chuckled into the pages of my book as Bob was forced to read the second part of the poem on page forty-three.

Unfortunately, Bob wasn't nearly as funny reading poetry as he was when making faces, and my attention drifted. I examined the unmoving clock on the wall and then noticed that my stomach was grumbling threatenly, "Feed me!" I imagined myself sitting down to unwrap a hot, juicy burger. Bringing it up to my mouth. I started to take a big, delicious . . .

"Jimmy! Hello! We're waiting." I was shocked out of my daydream.

"What? Could you repeat that?"

"Jim, come on. What does the cow on line twenty-seven symbolize?" My mind was a void, a hungry void. I tried to look knowledgeable.

"The cow? Umm, it represents their food." The class broke into laughter. The teacher, shaking his head, reminded me that I was in a classroom and that when I decided to pay a little more attention, my grades would start to look much better.

At last the class calmed down. I was relieved. I thought I was off the hook and got ready to contemplate my french fries. At the last minute, I was pulled back into reality by the chilling words "Jim, I'm sure you would love to read us the poem that starts in the middle of page sixty-seven."

I shelved my lunch in the back of my mind, glanced at the clock, and opened my book. □

Foreign Language — Our Daily "Devoirs"

I collapsed onto my seat as the bell rang. I hoped my class would go to the lab today because I hadn't completed my "devoirs," a vocab sheet, and three pages in the grammar book. I stared intently at the cover of my notepad, hoping the teacher would not notice me. I did keep my ears perked though, not wanting to be caught off guard by an unexpected question. My mouth widened into a smile as I heard the good news. "Today we will go to work in the lab . . ." But it collapsed as the teacher added, "After this 'petit examen de vocabulaire'."

The vocab quiz, which appeared so small and innocent, was deadly. To make the situation worse, all the directions were written in French. I stared at it, wondering if it were written in code. The clock ticked slowly, as I tried to look industrious.

"Time's up! Put your quizzes in a pile up here and pick up a new song sheet for the lab." Songs! What had begun as a relieved grin on my face was now an agonized grimace. I picked up the paper and slowly headed down the hall to the lab. At the door, I sneaked by the teacher, who was collecting last night's devoirs. After two tries, I found a desk where all the equipment worked. Sitting down, I checked out the latest graffiti additions.

Automatically, the well-trained class put their headphones on. I worried that my ears would be permanently crushed into my head if I wore my head-set too long. I put the mouthpiece down and the sound of the gum I was chewing was amplified in my ears. I slouched down as the rest of the class started to sing along with the muffled tape that began to play. Examining the writing on my desk more closely, I debated whether or not to add to it.

I took out my pen, sure that I was unnoticed in my cubicle. "Jimmy, I don't hear you. You know that oral participation is thirty percent of your grade this quarter." The voice projected itself through my headphones. At last, with a heavy sigh, I gave up. I lifted my sheet and tried to find a place. Finally I located the line and joined in. □

History —

Manifesto Mania

I walked into the darkened history room. "Oh, wow. Are we seeing a movie?" A voice answered out of the shadow.

"No, that was for B-period. We're going to review the Brunswick Manifesto for Thursday's in-class essay." Enlightened, I made my way over to my seat. I took out my notebook and started counting how many people had asked if we were seeing a movie.

When we were all assembled, the teacher requested that we hand in our notecards. I had been doing notecards in preparation for my lengthy term paper, due in ten days. I checked my knapsack, and after a few minutes of rummaging, pulled out the results of my work. Once, the cards were handed in, the class was ready to begin.

"O.K. Take out your packets and we'll go over some of the questions." The class pulled out their folders. I again rummaged in my sack.

"Can I go to my locker? I forgot my packet." Once I had been granted permission, I raced down the hall, reached my locker and returned in record time. Out of breath, I flopped into my seat.

"Jimmy, do you think the revolution had a significant effect?" I was glad I had done my homework.

"Yes, the people really . . . " Before I could finish, the kid in the corner of the room, who was always debating, cut me off. I prepared to answer back, to defend my honor. Before I had the chance, that kid's "debating friend" interrupted. I was so mad that I didn't ever get my chance. By now the discussion was on another point. I sighed and picked up my pencil to take some notes. I had to admit that even though the debaters had cut me off, they had great ideas. □

The Twenty-Five Plus Club

Have you looked in old yearbooks to discover a host of familiar faces? Several faculty members have dedicated over twenty-five years of their lives to educating Weston High School students. Thelma Hoyle has been at Weston since 1951, teaching such skills as shorthand, typing, and economics. Miss Butera, the woman behind the Weston field hockey tradition, arrived in 1956 to teach physical education. Since then, she's had over three hundred wins as our field hockey coach, not to mention the numerous Dual County League and State Championships that she has earned. Three years after Miss Butera came to high school, Mr. Walker started to teach English classes, introducing students to grammar and new vocabulary words. Throughout his years of teaching, Mr. Walker has also been an integral part of Weston's successful tennis tradition, as well as being a helpful friend to many students. The ''class of '61'' includes Mrs. Fernald, Mr. Gearan, and Miss Raymond. Mrs. Fernald has dedicated her life to enlightening students on the basics of Latin roots, verbs, and declensions, while Miss Raymond guides students in creative writing. Mrs. Gearan, on the other hand, takes care of students detentions, absences,and late slips; and recently received an award as the Assistant Principal of the Year. The last member of the ''Twenty-Five Plus Club'' is Mr. Duncan, who teaches electronics, auto-tech and driver's education. He also has led our cross-country and track teams to many successful seasons.

Thousands of Weston High School students thank you for your Twenty-Five Plus years of excellence in teaching. □

Capturing the most impressive moments is the job of

THE YEARBOOK STAFF

If you consider ''bleeding'' an event when you cut yourself shaving, or a ''dingbat'' someone who misses a yearbook deadline, then you are clearly missing out on one of the great experiences of life — being a member of the 1987-88 Yearbook Staff. Any staff member would instantly know that ''bleeding'' is a term that describes laying out a picture so that it reaches the edge of the page, and that a ''dingbat'' is the little box found next to the page numbers and at the end of articles. Unfortunately this year not many will recognize these terms because our staff was not very big, consisting of approximately ten members. Nevertheless we put a tremendous amount of time into the yearbook. The editors have spent nearly every afternoon until 5:00 in the Home-Ec room, and several times have worked all weekend and weeknights until the custodians threw us out at 11:30 p.m. Contrary to popular belief, we do more than make popcorn, sell M&M's, throw together a few pictures and captions, and send them to a publisher. Instead making a yearbook is a time consuming, somewhat difficult, precise activity that takes an estimated 450 hours to complete. It is simultaneously one of the most rewarding and valuable activities to participate in because most everyone appreciates the yearbook. Also, because every student is in the book (at least once), while working one tends to meet new students or simply become more aware of who's who in Weston High.

It has not been an easy year trying to balance grades, applications and a staff possibly less experienced than usual, yet after putting all our time into this book, we are confident that you will appreciate and enjoy what our hard work has produced. □

This year's fall play marked the beginning of A NEW ERA

The year's fall play marked the beginning of a new era at Weston High School. The play, (actually three one-act plays) was the first dramatic production at WHS under the direction of John Minigan. The play, THREE MODERN KYOGEN, by Donald Richie, was performed in the WHS auditorium on November 20 and 21.

The plays were written in the comic Kyogen style of Japanese theater and performed in a combination of three classic Japanese styles: Koyogen, Nho, and Kabuki. The content of the plays was very different from what WHS has been used to in the past. These Kyogen, with their "questionable morality," were a lot of fun to work on and a lot of fun to watch —— not surprising since they were the first comedies our actors have had a chance to perform in several years.

The three plays were THE PERFECT SERVANTS, THE MAGIC FUNDOSHI, and THE MISPLACED GODDESS. Each of the plays had its own special moments. In SERVANTS, the two servants (Adam Dugas and Heather Atman) do little but complain about each other, only to end up in bed together, thinking they are with each other's masters (Ben Kendall and Stacy Martin). In FUNDOSHI, the lord (Ben Kendall) "exposes himself" to the other characters (Adam Dugas, Kathleen Kelleher, and Leah Wheelock). The many funny moments in THE MISPLACED GODDESS included Andy Wedmore, Aaron Guth, and Tom Caruso posing as the beautiful Benten, "Goddess of love and other related matters," Andy mistakenly caressing an incognito Aaron, and Jehane Sedký turning Andy, Aaron, and Cameron MacKensie into women.

It is only fitting that our new director should have a successful first show, and THREE MODERN KYOGEN was a real hit! □

TAKING THE LEAD

Improving the high school and representing Weston students by

You may have seen us working at refreshment stands; or you may have heard co-presidents, Fred Johnson and Allen Wang ''rapping'' over the PA and wondered, ''Who are these kids?'' The Student Council is a group of elected students who represent students' needs by holding school functions and working with the school administration to help improve life at Weston High.

One of the main functions of the Student Council is to hold activities and foster school spirit. We kicked off the year grilling hotdogs and burgers for our opening day barbecue, doing away with those piles of cold-cuts and soggy sandwiches of the past. Since then we have served as ushers for Back to School Night, held a reception for students new to Weston High, and sold refreshments at Spirit Day and the Weston Arts and Crafts Show. But perhaps our most successful undertaking was the ''Plymouth Rock'' dance, held on the Tuesday before Thanksgiving. The dance featured a DJ and the notorious group, the ''Boneheads,'' for a night of exciting entertainment.

The Student Council has also worked on issues affecting Weston students. Our first task was to get the Cafeteria to start serving breakfast again.By working with Mr. MacDonald, putting up signs reading ''Keeping neat, if you want to eat,'' and making school wide announcements encouraging kids to throw away their trash, the Student Council made sure that students wouldn't go through morning without food in their stomachs. At the moment, we're working on plans to help beautify the school, and planning for a day-long ''Springfest.'' Our hard work has affected all students by making Weston high a more enjoyable place to go to school. □

FUN WITH WORDS

Incoming Freshmen hear the word Malestrom and get scared. Is Malestrom some kind of cult? No, it is a literary magazine. Any student or teacher in Weston High School can submit fiction, poetry or artwork for possible publishing. Under the direction of Miss Busse and this year's editors Adam Dugas, Erica Frank and Kaesmene Harrison, Malestrom members criticize and select the best works of the year to be included in the publication.

Malestrom offers you an opportunity to see your work in print, read great stories, and have fun.

There are other writing opportunities available. The foreign language department has adopted both a new look and a new name for what was formerly Lux Lumeire. They are presently publishing Global Perspectives which is a combination newsletter and literary publication. It is a student prepared paper which will be published four times this year. A very interesting aspect of Global Perspectives is that it was prepared on the MacIntosh computer which enabled the students to send it to the printer ''print-ready.''

Viewpoint, the new school newspaper, was the brain child of Josh Gerstein and Andy Wedmore. They both felt the high school needed a newspaper which would give parents and the community an idea of what is occuring at Weston High School and reflect opinions and interest of high school students and staff. They plan to publish four issues and are also using the ''Mac'' to get the paper ''print ready.'' Viewpoint solicits editorial comments. □

In several activities Weston students demonstrate their CONCERN FOR OTHERS

Educating students, teachers and the local community about the rights of animals is the main goal of STAR. We are particularly concerned about some of the methods the fur industry uses to obtain pelts; about cruel, and in many instances, unnecessary animals research; and the questionable practices used in ''factory farming'' animals for meat.

We have sponsored such things as the Great American Meatout, a day spent without eating meat, as a protest against the condition of factory farming and the unhealthy quality of the meat that is a result of the animals' ''special'' diet and care. We have brought animals from local shelters hoping they might be adopted, and in an attempt to advertise the growing problem of homeless animals that will eventually die or be used for animal research.

We have provided guest speakers on a variety of topics, such as the canine unit in police work and the fate of retired greyhounds that have been used in racing. We have shown videos dealing with laboratory animals used for research such as ''cosmetic'' testing, psyhchology experiment; head injury experiments and other tax-funded horrors. Often these experiments are of little or no value to humans.

Our interests are concerned not only with the animals, but with humans as well. We want good, sound research that can be used directly for human health. We want our foods to be pure so we can live a life free of disease caused by meat. We look out for the welfare of animals because, if we can't treat them with dignity and respect,how can we hope to treat each other well? □

The B.S.U., Triathlon Club and Science Team have found the right

FORMULA FOR SUCCESS

One of Weston High's most competitive teams doesn't even compete in the Dual County League! Although the Science Team is only three years old, enthusiasm is higher than ever. Once a week, Weston's best student biologists, Chemists, and physicists meet to sharpen their skills, and on the second Wednesday of each month, the science team competes with twelve other suburban schools for the right to possess the coveted West Suburban Science League cup. Although Weston has never taken it home, don't be surprised if you see some new hardware lying around the main office.

The science team meets are tough academic triathalons, with the team branching off into three 'special teams' of four or less students. Each group has prepared for their specific event with the aid of coach Jordan, and other generous members of the science department.

Sometimes the event is a quiz, requiring intense brain-wrecking, or sometimes it is a lab which must be performed. Taxonomy and other classifications events are also very common. Building things is also popular and no small job is too big for the science team. Back in '86 Weston had the best bridge in the league, although last year's toothpick extravaganza didn't fair as well. The projectile cannon was also very well constructed —who cares if we hit the judge? Many people's favorite attraction at science team meets are the refreshments-donuts, sandwiches and even pizza. This really gives you something to look forward to after the fierce competition. □

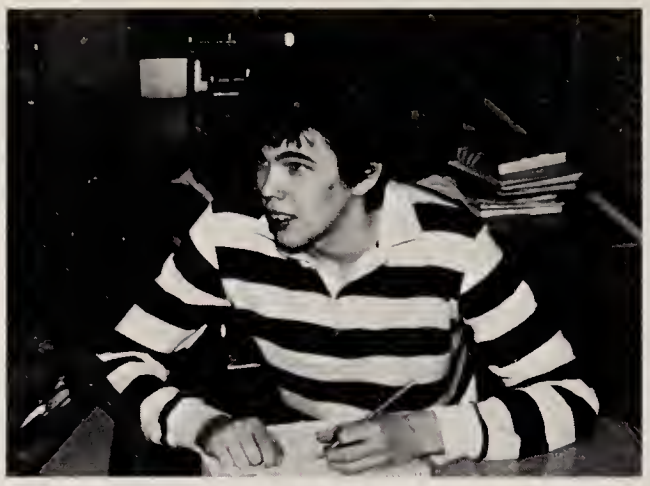
WESTON'S NUMBER POWER

The Math Team, Computer Club and Astronomy Club constitute



This year's math team is the strongest in recent years, set out to defend it's state runner-up position with intensity and competitiveness. Led by captains, Dinesh Lathi and Allen Wang, and a host of other seniors, we contributed our Wednesday conference periods and personal time to practice our logarithims, parallel lines, and 'trig' to perfection. As a result of our hard work, our scores have consistently beaten those of Wayland and Action Boxborough, and we've been able to compete with larger schools such as Canton and Concord-Carlisle. At this rate, we could be looking forward to a New England Championship!

The Weston High Chess Team made ALL THE RIGHT MOVES

The 1987-88 Chess Team strove for it's fourth consecutive Eastern Mass. Title. Motivated by three W's — win, win and win — the team ran laps, did push-ups and finger exercises during Tuesday Conference period. This intense physical exertion has improved us enormously, as we streamrolled over Lincoln-Sudbury and Concord-Carlisle. An improving Dave Wallace has jumped to Board Two this year, crushing his bewildered opponents. Third-year varsity letterman, Adam Perrin, has remained an unstoppable force on Board Three while the contingent of Andy Noymer, Vernon Belden, Karl Yen and Brian Allen has proved impossible to beat on Board's Four and Five. Captain Greg Kaden again got the job done on Board One. With a strong nucleus of juniors and a solid corps of underclassmen, the Chess Team can only expect bigger and better thing in the future. □

The Announcer's Club members aspire to be

ANCHORS OF THE FUTURE

We're the people behind the PA system: we're the Announcer's Club, the 'Dan Rathers' and 'Howard Cossells' of the future. While most of the students at Weston High sit apathetically through each homeroom, we're in the main office announcing the order of periods for the day, informing those who left their carlights on in the parking lot, and inquiring about your lost wallets, jackets, and books. We're also the ones behind the "ding-dong-ding" which pervades the school each morning, and we make you stand up every Monday to say the pledge of allegiance. But perhaps our biggest challenge is trying to keep from laughing and making mistakes, for sometimes "Room 10, at 1:45" comes out as "Room 145, at 10:00." So just remember we're the ones who bring the news of Weston High to the students and teachers around the school, even if most of them don't listen anyway. □

HITTING THE RIGHT NOTES

As in the past, the Weston High choruses enjoyed an outstanding year. Despite the loss of many singers due to graduation, Mrs. Taggart worked to bring out the best in us as each individual contributed personal time and effort to learn notes and improve his technique. We successfully entertained parents and fellow students at our annual December Holiday Concert and also our spring Pop's Concert.

But the choral groups did more than just participate in Weston High concerts. Not only did they perform for the town of Weston at the annual Golden Ball Tavern Wassail party, but they also volunteered to sing at the Museum of Science and to terminally ill children at Logan Airport. Our contributions to the surrounding area will be remembered long after we graduate. □

THE SOUND OF MUSIC

Marching Band, Orchestra and Concert Band give Weston High

"We got some experience going on tour," says Music Director Ronald Mori of his instrumental groups — Marching Band, Band and String Orchestra. Tour they did, as the musicians got a taste of outside the walls of the W.H.S. auditorium.

The Marching Band paid no heed to the absence of a Wildcat home field as they traveled abroad, braving the cold rain and snow, while cheering on the football team at every away game. Led by Ibuki Kimura, president, Tom Caruso, vice-president, and John Harmon, librarian, the Marching Band had the unique experience of performing at the ceremony of the naturalization of immigrants at Fanueil Hall. In addition to enjoying the marketplace, band members had the opportunity of witnessing the swearing-in-ceremony of new United States citizens. The patriotic tunes of the band provided a fitting welcome to the new citizens.

Declining enrollment diminished the size of the String Orchestra, but the group remained strong and enthusiastic with Caity McLaughlin as president and librarian, Amy Wilson. The orchestra traveled with the Concert Choir to the Boston Museum of Science in early December, where they performed as part of a festival of music for local high schools.

Despite the fact that Full Orchestra is no longer a regularly scheduled course, loyal Band and String Orchestra members have sacrificed after school time, frees, and an occasional history class to rehearse and perform as a true Full Orchestra, with woodwinds, brass and strings.

Mr. Mori had led his groups to new heights of success and productivity in the world of music. "Going on tour" not only was a lot of fun, but also a valuable learning experience. What could be next? Symphony Hall, maybe? □

Weston High School offers students MORE THAN JUST CLASSES

As you can see,Weston High School offers students more than just classes and homework. It all begins, early in the fall, with the Student Activities' Fair, where you venture around to tables manned by classmates urging you to join their clubs and organizations.

You can join the ''band team,'' which includes the marching band, flag team and majorettes. Or maybe your instrumental music interests lean more toward the classical music of the concert band or, orchestra. If you prefer vocalizing, Mrs.Taggart is anxious to help you perfect your skills in one or more of her choral groups.

The president of SADD proclaims that you can help save lives, the Stockyard advisor offers a chance to make money, and Mrs. McCowan tugs you by the shoulder asking you to join the Math Team. If you like to see your writing in print, don't overlook your many options, not the least of which is the Weston High School Yearbook.

At the end of the fair, you usually decide upon one or two activities which will occupy your upcoming Tuesday and Wednesday Conference periods, whether these are ''Triathalon Club'' or ''World Cultures.''

Aside from clubs, there are also many school functions throughout the year. Concerts. Student Council dances, and plays add to the number of school-wide events which may occupy your Friday nights, not to mention the weekend basketball and football games.

These events, along with the rest of your extra-curricular activities, give every student the chance to participate in the spirit of Weston High School. □

Field Hockey

The Varsity Field Hockey Team had an outstanding season. Hard work, determination, and team spirit helped us claim second place in the Dual County League. Captains, Kathy Stichweh and Helen Thomas worked both on and off the field, displaying the leadership and quality playing needed to guide the leadership and quality playing needed to guide a winning team.

It was our great effort which took us to the semi-finals of the state tournament. Sophomore Melissa Fish aided by a powerful defense, stunned opponents in goal. Junior Sue Deldechetto, who blasted shots past the opposing goalie, helped us to victory. DCL All-Stars Lisa Aserkoff, Kathy Stichweh and Helen Thomas also contributed to the squads success.

Team spirit is what brought us this far. Ignoring snickers and outside remarks, we got psyched-up for our games by wearing pajamas and spray painted hair. Miss Butera, putting up with our complaints and slow sprints, was a great coach who supported and helped us out. Her effort, combined with team effort, made this season one of the best ever. □

Cross-Country

Both the Girls' and Boys' Cross Country teams faced tough seasons this year. Fortunately, their unique team spirit and drive to win helped the teams emerge at the top. Coach Duncan and Coach Monz provided challenging and inventive practiced that took us to uncharted territory such as the Wayland High School sand pit.

The care of the boys' team remained untouched from last year. Veterans Brian Allen and Rob Fortune, were again dominate forces in the DCL. After winning the All league meet, the boys went on to take second placein Eastern Mass and 19th in the state.

The girls, who had only four returning runners, faced the challenge of rebuilding a team. Without the help of injured All Starr, Christen Lynch, co-captains Kara McNamara and Erika Meyer had the task of bringing along an inexperienced, but talented squad. The girls'efforts payed off when they retained their title as league champions. Kara McNamara and Dana Hanson continued idnthe State Championships to represent the team, which finished 6th in Eastern Mass.

The continuation of old traditions such as pre-meet pasta feasts and the spam ritual assured the teams' success. □

Football

While the Wildcats had a somewhat disappointing season, all members would agree that the year was, in many ways, a great success. Even though "amebas" were outlawed, pre-season camp was a memorable experience. Everyone will remember being caught hiding in the woods on the morning mile; and our first scrimmage against Murdoc High. The season came to its peak as we had our crowning victory against Concord-Carlisle. One thing no one will forget is the Hyde Park game, or should we say battle? Fists flew that day, but we walked away with our dignity and a 35-to-nothing shut out. Although the season took a turn for the worse at this point, we contined with great enthusiasm. Our coaches and captains, John and Scott, held us together through the good times as well as the bad.

Though the season was shy of wins, I believe that we experienced a special comraderie which we'll remember for the rest of our lives. □

Boys' Soccer

Despite the loss of many key players due to graduation, this year's boys' soccer team displayed a strong showing in the highly competitive Dual County League. Under the direction of new head coach Dave Mishol, the Wildcats ended up with a respectable 8-7-3 record which included a 2-1 win over Acton and a 4-1 blowout over Concord-Carlisle.

Although the team was young, it had its share of talented seniors. The defense stayed strong througout the season, as all-star co-captain Neil Ross and junior Mike Chin anchord the middle of the defense, while James Potter and Greg Miller played at the wing-fullback positions. Co-captain John Rogaris proved to be one of the best midfielders in the league, dominating the game both offensively and defensively with his skill and all-out hustle. Other midfielders included Crit Gee, who ignited the team with his intensity and skill; a much-improved Brian Miller; and Allen Wang, who missed much of the season due to illness but played well at stopper and midfield. But perhaps the most notable standout this season was goalie John Dickson, who played strongly in goal for several games in midseason despite having no varsity experience. Other seniors included defensive standouts Fred Johnson, Doug Pyle, and midfielder Chris McCaihn, whose devotion and hustle contributed to the team on and off the field.

After an intense season, the Wildcats were disappointed to have missed the State Tournament by only three points, but with many talented players returning next year, Weston soccer is in store for a bright future. □

Girls' Soccer

Varsity Girls' soccer faced difficult season this year due to a lack of upperclassmen and therefore, a lack of experience. Led by three seniors, Ann Woodward, Emily Helm, and Zoe Rhodes, the team had plenty of ups and downs. But, regardless of the team's inexperience on the field, we constantly stuck to our trademark of ''Together'', and discovered a great deal about ourselves and each other.

Particularly strong contributions to the team come from an equally small group of juniors — Elaine Kakridas, Suzanne Condakes and Patty Birgeneau who all proved formidable opponents.

With only six upperclassmen, a great deal of our team was composed of freshmen and sophomores (4 and 6 respectively). This type of situation put a great deal of pressure on our younger players to put out the kind of expertise that one would expect of a junior and senior team. All ten of our ''youngsters'' worked hard and gave the team everything. Sophomores Christy Britton, Leeli Brooks and Amy Cacciatore helped out on offense while Kelly Gunderson maintained strength on defense. Marian Davidson helped out primarily on attack, but also plalyed some stellar sweeper towards the end of the season.

Alllyson King in the net, was brilliant as our returning goal keeper, saving numerous games for us through her natural reflexes and strength.

Finally, freshmen Jill Havlicek, Kelli Murphy, Keri Karofsky and Amy Thibault helped out the team with their spirit and ''frosh naivite''.

I think that we all learned some lessons this year. Unfortunately, winning seasons cannot be enjoyed without the pain of an occasional losing season. Good luck to soccer '88. Never forget how much this hurts. □

Boys' Basketball

The Boys' Basketball team began the season with high expectations. They were defending Division III North sectional champs and were the preseason #1 pick for all of Division III. Quite possibly all the hype surrounding the team may have initially gone to the player's heads. They promptly lost their first four games. Perhaps this was for the best as the pressure of being #1 was quickly erased. It would have been easy to pack it in for the rest of the season and worry about next year. But through the leadership and motivation of head coach Jim Porrell and assistant Peter Taberski the team rapidly turned the season around.

The first win came in a Christmas tournament consolation game against Lynn Tech. This victory gave the Wildcats confidence as they headed into their grueling DCL schedule. A close win over Concord-Carlisle got the team rolling. They proceeded to win 7 of their next 8 games to put themselves in a three team battle for second place in the DCL behind Lincoln-Sudbury. Among these victories, one stands out as the turning point in the season. Not surprisingly, it was the traditional matchup against rival Wayland. The Wildcats played a great all-around game and posted a decisive victory over the Warriors in front of a jam-packed home crowd. As the team headed into the tail end of the schedule a once unthinkable state tournament bid now appeared attainable.

The Wildcats were led by an outstanding group of seniors. Captain Peter Condakes was the striving force behind the team. He averaged over 28 points a game in route to being named co MVP of the DCL. Seniors Billy Watkins, a DCL all-star, and Lenon Grady were two important factors in the Wildcats' success. All three were starters for the last two seasons and provided the big-game experience. Seniors Paul Gibb, Marc Rashotsky and Scott Perryman also played vital roles in pushing the team to victory. All these players will be sorely missed next year as well as Brian Allen and Gary Peters. The prospects for next year look good. The team will be led by returning starters Dan Cail and Greg Kaden. Other promising juniors are Tom Norton, Bill Callahan and Alex Sayegh. □

Swimming

This year's Red Tide was again successful, showing the league that Weston Swimming is still a team to watch out for. Led by two year round swimmers, Co-Captains Dinesh Lathi and Brad Balter, the Tide swam to a 13-2 record. Weston placed third in the league to longtime opponents Acton-Boxboro and Lincoln-Sudbury. In addition to the captains, Sophomore Vijay Lathi, and Freshman Owen Bittenger, (also year round swimmers for the New England Barracudas) led the team in the 100 yd butterfly and the 500 yd freestyle. Junior David Kohn was also an outstanding performer, leading off the medley relay and scoring high in the 100 yd backstroke. A strong senior core of David Haas, David Israel, Dan Fawcett, Karen Palmer and Eric Karofsky lead the team in spirit and performance. The divers played an important part in the season, with Karen Palmer, Heather Leisman and Alison Forman making their marks at every meet, carrying on Weston's tradition of league dominance in diving.

Team spirit was always high, there was a fourth man in every race, cheering his teammates on for the final 10 yard sprint of each race. One didn't have to be a standout in the pool to be important to the team. David Balter, Alex Fraser, ''Studs'' Lonigan, Hilary Hanson, ''Rambo'' Rosen, and Kate Conrad were all newcomers, and made impressive progress over the season.

Coach Foley, along with assistant coach Reid Christien, did an excellent job as usual with the Tide of 88'. Skills such as visualization, and perseverance, were learned by all. Even at the low points in the season, the team was able to forget its losses and look ahead. Weston swimming carried on the tradition that it will always be a force to be reckoned with. Wrestling

This year's team was led by senior quint-captains Dan Wims, Shawn Lewis, John Perry, Crit Gee and Andy Wedmore. Their strong performance along with many fine matches from several underclassmen pushed the Wildcats to an 11-6 record with one match left in the season. The winning streak of 45 dual matches came to a halt during a loss to league rival, Wayland.

Many of the younger wrestlers benefited by the small number of seniors on the team, which gave them experience needed to excel on the mat. Some of these wrestlers are Freshman, George Kampoures, Sophomores, Brian Hauffler, Jon Floyd and Billy Doyle. They will assist Juniors Leo Hwang, Doug Mosher and Eli Golub to victory next year.

Coaches Dave Baldanza and Kevin Thomas insured that every wrestler on the team was in top physical condition by instituting the annual overnight which brought over 50 individuals together as a team. A team that will only improve in the coming years. □

Winter Track

The Weston Indoor Track team made it through another season with several outstanding performances. Dane Fletcher and Zoe Rhodes led the sprinters in winning points while newcomer Tom Peeples took the DCL by surprise with his hurdling and high jumping talent. The distance runners were represented by Rob Fortune and Kara MacNamara, who rounded out the group of top Weston Scorers. The rest of the team, consisting mainly of upperclassmen veterans, was joined this year by several enthusiastic freshmen who filled out the ranks. Along with hard work and training, the team perfected their basketball skills and learned techniques for the latest "funny walks" during practice sessions. Outdoors, runners enjoyed the scenic beauty of Brown street before raiding several Route 9 restaurants.

Coaches John Monz and Tim Donovan worked the team with the big end-of-the-season meets in mind. For the outdoor runners, Monday became the "Dreaded Distance Day." Indoors, Wednesday was Circuit Training day. Both sprinters and distance runners still made the traditional trips to M.I.T. for evening speed workouts. Thanks to the variety of new workouts, the Wildcat runners were ready to do their best, whether it was on a square, bi-level track or at the class and State meets in Boston. □

Ice Hockey

For the second straight season the Wildcat hockey team fought its way through a tough DCL schedule with pride, although it was seriously undermanned. The team started the season with a meager seventeen players, only to lose four of them along the way due to various problems ending the season with thirteen. With the graduation of five regulars, including the top four goal scorers from last year's quad, the team not only suffered from a lack of depth but a lack of firepowers as well.

Led by co-captains John Rogaris and returning DCL All-Star Ron Sacher, the Wildcats played a disciplined forechecking game concentrating on defense. Sacher teamed up with Mike "The Golden Child" Chin on the blue line who had a sensational season keeping attackers away from goaltenders Bryan Miller and freshman, Peter Woodward. Rogaris led a pack of forwards including seniors, John Dickson, Greg Miller, and Brad "The Animal" Donahue, Juniors; Scott Doyle and Mark Magraw and sophomore Adam Alexander in frustrating opponents in their own zone leading to most of Weston's goals. Other key contributors were freshmen; Ken Caicciatore, Tom Reydel and Chris Riis.

The highlight of the season was definitely the two shutouts posted against arch Wayland, one by Woodward the other by Miller. Rogaris had the game winner in the 2-0 game with Sacher adding two assists, and Sacher scored the only goal late in the game in the 1-0 blanking. The team showed tremendous hustle even against teams with twice the depth of the Weston squad and never once gave up. Hopefully, next year's team will continue to earn respect through the same hard work and determination displayed by the '87-88 Wildcats. □

Girls' Basketball

The Girls' Basketball team came out with a positive attitude but unfortunately they have not lost last years unlucky omen. The girls worked hard in every practice and their spirits soared as the season progressed. Returning for the second year as head coach was Betsy Dinger who made practices worthwhile and fun. The tri-captains of the team were Sue Condakes, Melissa Georgeady and Heidi Williams.

Even though the odds were against us, we still went out with a winning attitude at all times. We all decided that our second half of all of the games were the best and our adrenilyn was highest at that point. As much as Coach Dinger would slam her clipboard down on the floor during the games, she knew deep down inside that we were trying our hardest and we wanted to win more than anybody.

The high scorers for the season were Sue Condakes, Cindy Mallett, Kim Chandler and Melissa Georgeady. Everyone put all of their effort into the season, especially at Newton South where the final score was 39-42. We did have our ups and downs but no one ever gave up and all you can do is wish for a luckier season in '89. □

Aspiring Athletes

With much of our attention focused on the competing varsity teams, we often forget that many athletes represent Weston on Junior Varsity teams. These players, though they do not share the publicity, train as many hours as those on Varsity teams. In practice and competition, J.V. players work just as diligently to improve and strengthen their team.

Though our J.V. teams receive less recognition, they are very important in the development of varsity squads. J.V. competition serves as a training ground for upcoming players. Less experienced and younger athletes gain the mileage and seasoning they need to become a part of a future varsity team. Without J.V. teams to condition new athletes, varsity teams would find themselves lacking the experienced veterans they need to build up their ranks.

Aside from its role in bringing along fresh talent, J.V. gives athletes a chance to play and train without the pressure that varsity competition can put on a player. Athletes who were not selected to play with one of the limited varsity teams can still participate in sports even if they are not athletic superstars. Though there may be these differences between varsity and J.V., there is little difference in the amount of energy put into activity on the playing field, court, or track.

It is these players who stay with a sport even if they know they will be missing out on publicity and acclaim, that keep our athletic programs so successful. Weston is very fortunate to have so many enthusiastic athletes who are willing to work without receiving the rewards and recognition that varsity does. Without J.V. competition we would not be able to come up with the experienced and talented athletes that we field on the successful varsity teams each year. □

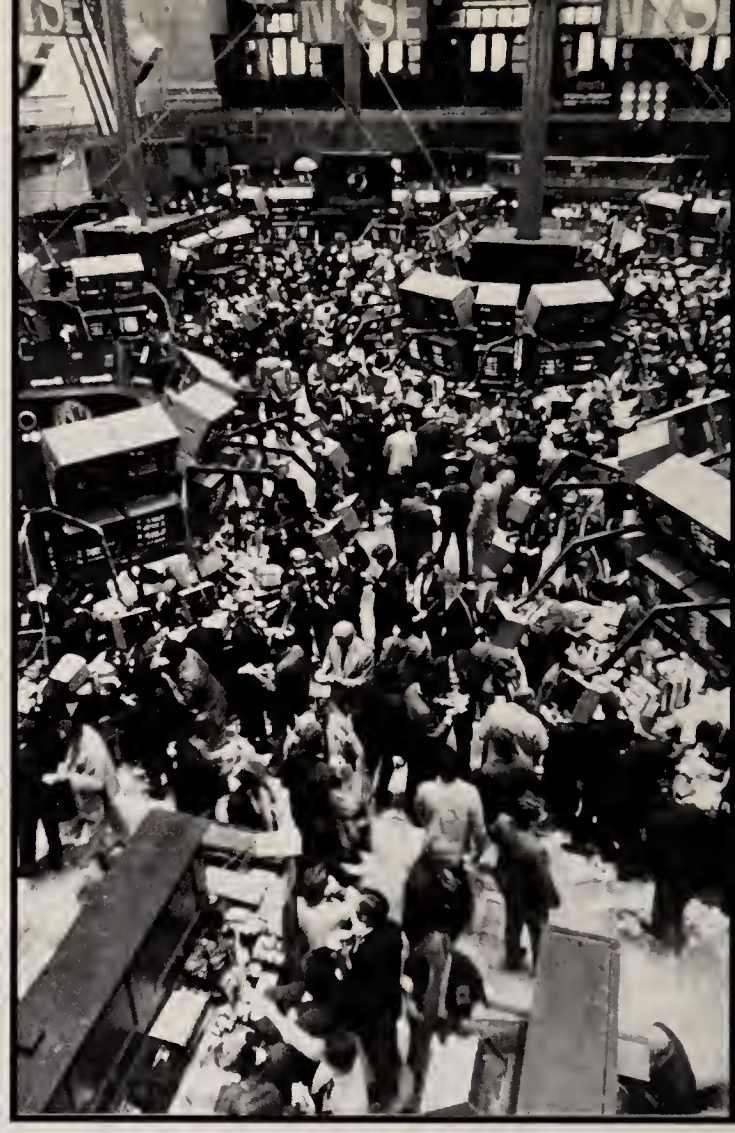
IMAGES OF '87

Our vision in 1987 was clouded with problems that ran the gamet from a world-wide medical disaster, to threat of war, to a religious sex-scandal.

Undoubtedly the most serious issue was the AIDS epidemic with its frightening prospects for the future. The Center For Disease Control estimated that at least one million Americans had been exposed and that we could expect to see 270,000 U.S. cases by 1991. The area of the Persian Gulf, which serves as the seaway for about 15 percent of the world's crude oil, became a war zone as the U.S. agreed to place its flags on Kuwaiti tankers and provide them with Navy escorts. Oliver North seized the spotlight in the continuing saga of the Iran Contra scandal, as he described to Congress the aiding of Nicaraguan contras from the profits of arms sales to Iran. We witnessed the "Crash of 87" as stocks plunged a record 508 points, an event chillingly reminiscent of the "Crash of 29."

On a more promising note, Mikhail Gorbachev and Ronald Reagan met for another summit; this time they agreed upon an intermediate nuclear forces treaty which Reagan called the "largest arm's reduction in history."

Our view of 1987 would not be complete without remembering two miracles that might well be the greatest gift any year could bring. As the whole country — even much of the world — watched and prayed, Baby Jessica McClure was rescued from a 22-foot well; and we marveled that four-year old Cecilia Cichan was the only survivor of a plane crash that killed 155.



The Dow Jones industrial stock average dropped 508 points, the largest in history, on Monday, October 19. Some called it a "crash," other a "meltdown," and some called it "Black Monday." Whatever it was, it stripped $500 billion from the market value of U.S. securities.

President and Mrs. Reagan greeted Pope Paul II when he arrived in Miami to begin a nine-city tour of the United States.

Marine Lt.Col. Oliver L. North, was a key official in the plan to finance anti-government rebels in Nicaragua with money from arms sales to Iran. In testimony before the Iran-Contra hearings in Washington, North became somewhat of a celebrity.

In an effort to keep the Persian Gulf open to navigation, the U.S. began in July to escort vessels to protect them from Iran. In September the U.S. blew up an Iranian ship that was caught laying mines in the Gulf. Several mines were confiscated.

The Senate rejected President Reagan's nomination of Robert H. Bork to the Supreme Court by a 58-42 vote, which ended a long contentious debate over a judge alternately portrayed as a brilliant jurist and a dangerous extremist.

In the six years since Americans first heard of a mysterious immunity-robbing disease from which no one recovers, AIDS has killed nearly 25,000 Americans, millions of dollars have poured into medical research and President Reagan has proclaimed the plague "Public Health Enemy No.1."

A 24-day strike by the NFL players ended in mid-October when the union capitulated and went to court instead of trying to fight the club owners at the bargaining table.

Television evangelist Jim and Tammy Bakker said farewell to the PTL ministry in March. Jim Bakker resigned after confessing to a sexual encounter with a young woman. Tammy Bakker bowed out of the broadcast to undergo treatment for drug dependency.

Dennis Conner, the man who lost the America's Cup in 1983, won it back four years later. The Stars & Stripes completed a 4-0 sweep over Australia's Kookaburra III in the race that took place in Australia.

An earthquake that measured 6.1 on the Richter Scale hit southern California in October. It was not a catastrophic quake, but the damage was extensive.

President Reagan talks with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev during arrival ceremonies at the White House. The superpower leaders held a three-day summit in December and signed a treaty to ban medium-and-shorter range nuclear missiles from Europe and Asia.

Democratic presidential candidate Gary Hart was forced to drop his bid for the presidency after it was reported that he romantically involved with Donna Rice, a 29-year-old aspiring actress and model from Miami. He reentered the race in December, when Democrats labeled him "The Grinch Who Stole Christmas."

A barge filled with 3,128 tons of garbage became a national joke and a symbol of the nation's worsening problem with solid waste management. The barge, looking for a place to dump its cargo, was banned by six states and three foreign countries before an incinerator reduced it to ash.

Erica —

Congratulations on another very big step!
When you think things are bad
When you feel sour and blue,
When you start to get mad . . .
You should do what I do!
Just tell yourself, Duckie,
you're really quite lucky!
Some people are much more . . .
oh, ever so much more . . .
oh, muchly much-much more unlucky than you!

And he went back to meet the fox.

"Goodbye," he said.

"Goodbye," said the fox. "And now here is my secret, a very simple secret. It is only with the heart that one can see rightly, what is essential to the eye."

"What is essential is invisible to the eye," the little prince repeated, so that he would be sure to remember.

''Our memories of yesterday will last a life time, we'll take the best, forget the rest and someday we'll find these are the best of times''

BOAT PARTIES — two hour feeding plan, rolling Mr. Furley, spinaker haliard flying, zoe boey, petites, killer baked beans and dead bodies, ''Oh we built the ship titanic . . . '' ''Melissa could you look a little more like Sammy Hagar?!'' The head master, ''Let the good times roll''

U MAINE — ''Goodnight John'', crossing the trussel, Pat broke the picnic table. College Hunting-Walking in your food stamps, ''there's no place like home.'' first Night-Westin Hotel, ''What's your name . . . Simms?'' ''O Geeze . . . hangovers!!'' Greece/Grease. Y.L.-''Gum doug?'' Steve with the orange boots, Shaw II, Pat, Wade and Sully with his jokes on the chair lift. The sweet and low runt.

Innocent words we have used so many times — bread sticks, going to vermont in Vermont with suitcases and dufflebags, chocolate, the horny toad from 202, Nadia Commenicci, Boom Boom Chow, Kick Kick Bang and NSBM-the man with auburn hair, Yugoslavian munk, Scrub and The fish, Long duck dong.

People and Parties of 86-87 — Bonfire, Cherry Brook field, Jenny's broken nose, Nanda's broken door. Toga party. ''Who's the best . . . Thad's the best!'' Adam — ''You're all over me like a cheap suit on a rug'' RAMBO — ''I'm gonna kill ya whole family'' Jim exhale. ''Don't spear bill!'' Prom 87' — ''Donald where are you?'', ''rack O' what!'' Sewataro men & our banker

Where did we come up with these? — little red beepers, D.B.D., Limpits or Limpvitz?, ''chiko finga'', the wheat outfit, flick my mick, ''Topher, Topher gotto go home, tippy, tippy toes, tippy toes, tippy toes.'' ''How many cheeks do you have?'' ''The rat is scrounging'', ''can be pit — cher'' Bradleedales, nada nada daqueries, ''I got the napkins'', ''6.1 what a way to lose'', Karel the Gold Lady, ''Hi Sara, Hi Sara''.

Erika, we'll never forget the good times, good luck. thanks for the spikes Dan. Tom we vote you limbo man of the year. We love you Scratch, Scamper, Max, Tippy, Sappho, Rascal, Frolic, Sooty, Lisa, Cinders, Mo & Daphny. Especially Mousse, topher and Bear. Topher — ''You don't know what you've got till you lose it all.'' Bear — ''Don't even try it'' Thanks to all moms and dads, we love you! Good luck John and Kerry.

CONGRATULATIONS

MUCH LOVE,

MOM, DAD, WENDY,
SARAH, KATE + CASPER

To all my friends, thanx for being there — WB, LB, JD, WW, MB, JS, JG, JN, Denno, Dave, and all my other past graduated friends — you all mean a lot to me.
B. Mac — Hey guy, don't let them get you down. Keep smiling and keep the faith. I'll be back to check up on you.
Ben — It's been rough & it's been fun. stand tall, & good luck in the future . . . you've earned it. Kathleen — keep smiling & Dream On.
Aaron — We've known each other for a long time buddy. Your friendship has always meant something to me. Good luck in the future. Mich — STILL LOVING YOU!
Noel — I WOULD DIE 4 U!
Andy — What can you say to someone who seems to be your mirror image? You say anything but goodbye. Keep the faith and here's to the future . . .
Hey Mom! Don't worry about it! Being the black sheep isn't easy but somebody has to do it.
Dreams are the strength in life. Without them you are nothing. To stop dreaming is to stop trying to go on. Never let anyone put down your dream. Never let anyone get in your way. Your greatest dreams, no matter how impossible it may seem, can come true if you stay true and deserve them. Hold back those tears and forget all those fears. As Sammy once said, "I believe in fate and destination, but so much of that lies in our own hands." Dream on, until those dreams come true . . .
See you all in the public eye. Keep watching, I'll be there . . .

NEVER SAY GOODBYE
Be cool now,
Cameron

This is What's "Inside" the Package . . .

Panorama is the annual production of the yearbook staff of Weston High School, 444 Wellesley Street, Weston, Ma. 02193. "Great Things Come in Small Packages" was chosen as the theme for the 1988 book. The staff felt this theme was particularly relevant considering the school's excellence in all areas — academics, sports, music, drama and literary endeavors — and its small enrollment of 534 students.

Panorama, Volume V, was printed by Hunter Publishing Company, 2505 Empire Drive, P.O. Box 5867, Winston Salem, North Carolina 27113, with a press run of 390 books and May 19 delivery date. The book contained 216 pages with a trim size of 8 1/2 by 11 inches. It was printed on 80-pound dull stock white paper; pages one through sixteen of the opening section used Lustro-color paper.

DEADLINE SCHEDULE. The staff worked on a six-deadline schedule and all of these were sent in on time. The cover and endsheets were submitted on November 4. On November 11, eighty-nine pages, including the four-color pages, were submitted. Fifty-nine pages were sent to the publisher on December 23. The January 20 deadline contained thirty-one pages; on February 24 twenty-eight pages were submitted. The final deadline, on March 24, consisted of nine pages.

COVER AND ENDSHEETS. The cover was designed by members of the staff, aided by Hunter Publishing artists, at Hunters' Yearbook Workshop during the summer. The base cover material selected was slate-gray Lexatone #41098. The design and lettering, on the cover, used a two-color silk-screen process in colonial red and black; plus silver-foil stamping. The endsheets used dyed, textured 65-pound paper stock in blue weave #330. The "Table of Contents" was printed on the back side of the front end-sheet using black ink.

COLOR. Eight pages in the opening section used the four-color process; this section also boasted spot color, Red PMS #485. Spot color was used in other sections as follows: Green, PMS #348, in the Advertisement section; Blue, PMS #293 in the Sports Section.

TYPE. Most body copy used 10-point Times Roman, #178, set solid. Picture captions were set in 8-point Times Semi-bold Italic, #185, set solid. Headlines were printed in 36-point Times Roman, #178, unless otherwise indicated. Senior quotes used 8-point Times Roman set solid, with student names printed in 10-point Souvenir Light, #163

PHOTOGRAPHY. Senior portraits were taken by Tim Morse, Morse Photography, Carlisle, Ma.,; or were handed in by students themselves. Fall athletic team photos were also taken by Tim Morse. Underclass pictures were done by O'Conner School Pictures and Associates, Tewksbury, Ma. Other photography was done by the Yearbook Staff; by members of Mrs. Bancroft's Photography Class; and by Roberta Siegel, Weston, Ma. We also included pictures submitted by interested students.

EXPENSES. Panorama was completed on a budget of approximately $20,000. These monies were raised by the Yearbook Staff through patron and advertisement sales, and by selling the yearbook. Copies of the yearbook were sold at a cost of $26 for seniors and $28 for underclassmen, both prices including the spring supplement. The only other money-raising activity was the sale of M&M's during Conference Period and after school. □

Wrapping It Up

We have enjoyed incorporating, "Great Things Come in Small Packages" as the theme for our 1988 yearbook. This idea may not come across as a typical theme, but then again, Weston High School is not a typical school. Our theme conveys the idea that it is not the size of the school, nor the number of students in it, that counts; rather it is the quality of each of these that is important.

In June the class of 1988 will be going off to larger institutions, and in September a new and smaller freshman class will enter. Although the school's enrollment is still declining, the numbers of students are not what achieves excellence, but rather the multi-talented variety of students. Weston will, as it has for many years, continue to represent our theme, "Great Things Come in Small Packages." □
